LAKE MICHIGAN REEF

The 75-year-old Straits of Mackinac ferry, used to haul vehicles and passengers across the waterway of the same name, sinks Thursday in Lake Michigan, 10 miles off Navy Pier in Chicago. A barge crew monitors the sinking. Recreational divers will use the sunken vessel for exploration.

Due to the efforts of many cooperating sport divers, the former car ferry “Straits of Mackinac” was finally sunk on Apr 10, 2003. It will be used as an artificial reef for divers.

The ferry had been dry-docked in Kewaunee, Wisconsin for many years, and a Green Bay dive club, the Neptune Nimrods began a project to sink it as a recreational dive site. Last year ('02) the Kewaunee marina was sold, and the new owner demanded the ferry be removed within 30 days. Costs to relocate were on the order of $10-20 thousand, and the Neptune dive club was forced to offer the ‘Mackinac’ to any other group interested. The original thought was to sink it in the area of its namesake, but no groups showed interest. Ownership was finally given to a Chicago group led by Pat Hammer, owner of the Scuba Emporium in Orland Park, IL and president of Chicago’s ‘Our World Underwater’. The ‘Mackinac’ was finally towed to a Chicago dock, and a fund-raising campaign to sink her went into effect.

Volunteers were also sought. Before sinking, the ferry had to be cleaned, stripped of some items, and OK'd by the Coast Guard. It should be noted that a major contributor was Dick Long of San Diego’s Diving Unlimited International, a maker of dry suits. He is also a promoter of “ships to reefs”, and heads an organization to that end.

The target sinking date was Aug '02, then October. The target date was not met, and the ‘Mackinac’ had to wait through the winter. She was finally sunk last month, and can be found about 9 mi east of Chicago’s Navy Pier in 80’ of Lake Michigan water.

Florida Relocatee Dale Purchase

and his wife came back for a brief visit last month. Dale is finally getting settled in his new quarters in Melbourne, and has had the time to get some warm water diving in. He made a trip to the Keys where he dove the Bibbs, the Spiegel Grove, and the HydroAtlantic (180’). Of course he had to mention the water temp on the surface was 79; and at depth was 75. Isn’t this the same dive location that Mike P., Mike K., Don C., went on in Florida? (waiting to hear from- John Ruthig...)

Don Cunningham comments-

This is the last month you will have to deal with my ramblings. As per the constitution I have turned in my resignation to the board. A new newsletter editor will be elected at the May meeting. Don Storck said he is willing to resume being our news editor.

It looks like the new diving season is finally upon us. Last month Mike Peterson, Terry Peterson, Mike Kowalski, and myself head to Florida. We did shore diving and some charter dives. From diving on bridges to wreck dives. Mother nature (cont next pg) smiled on us as the weather was great. I could really tell you about some evening events but I think I'll let Mike Peterson fill in the details. I talked to Dale Purchase the other night and he and Phil Sheridan (and Phil's friends) dove the the Keys a couple of weeks ago. They dove some of the same wrecks as we did and some in deeper water namely the Northern Lights and the Hydro Atlantic. They also enjoyed good weather. Dale said he is finally getting settled in his new home. He will be visiting his daughter in California soon for a couple of weeks . He is looking forward to seeing us in August for some diving.

In closing THANK YOU for putting up with me the last couple of months. -Don Cunningham

Who Has Time To Read? Book Review By Mike Peterson

This year while walking through a bookstore in Mackinaw City on a break from diving, I found an excellent book. How I found it is controversial among my dive buddies.

The book is “The Laurentian Channel” by Christopher Knight; a fiction story about the finding of a mystery shipwreck near Cheboygan by a married couple. The story goes through many twists and turns as the couple research the uncharted wreck.

This book is an excellent read to spark your imagination with how real this event could be. Obviously, the author did his research to make this story realistic, and you relate to the dive descriptions.

If you are interested, and have trouble finding this book, call either Matt Cruz at Divers Berth or myself. -Mike

Reality Check...

Last month's SCOOP was the April 1 issue! It was intended to be humorous, and nothing in it was offensive. Anything found as offensive was only offensive in your own thoughts. The April SCOOP was a big Rorshach test; did you pass or fail?
