'05 Pumpkin Carve- A Tie For First!

Your editor can remember some really challenging underwater pumpkin carves in the past, but this was real competition! On the other hand, there have been some real nasty/cold/miserable days for the past club carvings, but this was prime weather. A number of eager participants showed up last Sunday at Hemlock Reservoir for the event, and everybody enjoyed the outing. But, as in all serious competition, only the best triumph.

Credit Due...

The Scoop does not usually cover movies, but the recent "Into The Blue" deserves some acknowledgement. The story is loosely about some scuba divers discovering a sunken plane, unfortunately belonging to drug dealers... To prepare for her part, star Jessica Alba started training 6 months prior to filming(as stated by the publicists), and learned free diving. She is apparently able to free dive to 60', and hold her breath for 1 1/2 mins. This is quite an accomplishment, and the Scoop salutes her.

Lady Aquanauts

1970; an undersea habitat named Tektite II was introduced. Five professional young women spent 14 days living in it as a research project. These women are-
