There was no club fun dive last month, maybe this month? Make your preferences known! The zoo has inquired if we'll do the UW pumpkin carve again this year; of course! More details at the meeting. Plan on some time to clean those windows! We also have permission to put a "Windows cleaned by SUE" sign in the pond. See the following note on this by Mike...

"Whaddaya think? It would be 11X17 or 11X14 or so, on some type of water proof vinyl on aluminum, attached to the wooded piers outside the first window to the left as you enter the observatory (usually the cleanest) and has the most fish around it. It would be very easy to attach with wood screws/lags, easier to see, and out of the way by putting it back on one of the cross members. I'm sending it to my sign guy to see what he recommends and the cost. We can make design changes if any of you have suggestions."

The meeting ended with Mike showing some videos of the Ohio quarry diving by Rob Quartermain, Justin Fabish, and Mike. For those that missed the video presentation, here are some still shots with documentary, compliments of Justin-

Ohio Quarry Dives, by Justin Fabish

Here we are getting ready to dive at White Star Quarry. In the photo are Dad and Rob Quartermain. This is my third trip to White Star. The first dive consisted of the crusher house and exploring the wall. This was my 90th dive. The second dive consisted more wall exploring and the fishing boat. We found a lobster bag filled with a glass bottle, teacup, saucer, pearls, paperweight, and steel blocks. I got to try* Rob's scooter but I was too buoyant to get below the surface. Maybe tomorrow. All in all, it was a fun day.

The three amigos finishing up a great day of diving. The weather was very nice. We're now on our way back to home base at Portage.*

This panoramic view is Gilboa Quarry where we did our second day of diving. It was another beautiful day in Ohio. When we pulled into Gilboa, we found out that there was a fundraiser event for Adaptive Divers, which is an organization to help divers who may be paralyzed to experience diving. Gilboa was hosting this event because they just installed a lift to be able to lift paraplegics into and out of the water. Kudos to Gilboa for providing a way for paraplegics. There was also a pig roast fundraiser dinner. They had pulled pork, chicken, grilled corn on the cob, chips, salad, veggies, cookies, and cupcakes. All of us got a raffle ticket as part of our meal and they gave away dozens of items from tee shirts to pop can coolers. Rob won and got a tee shirt. Dad and I didn't win anything ;,(All proceeds went to Adaptive Diving. After dinner, the three of us did a night dive. Saw lots of fish.*

We had the bright idea of feeding Slim Jim's to the trout at Gilboa. While Rob and Dad fed the fish, they went after our ears since we weren't wearing hoods thinking it was food. A fish got me on my left earlobe, Dad's left helix portion of his ear, and Rob's right anti helix portion of his ear. Note to self—wear a hood when feeding the trout at Gilboa.*

Historical Society Features Bill Atkins

It was the first meeting of the fall season for the Saginaw River Marine Historical Society, and our own Bill Atkins was the guest speaker. Held on a Saturday evening in Bay City; SUE members were invited to attend. If you mentioned you knew Bill, you got free admission.

Bill fine-tunes the equipment

Bill had three slide presentations; the main one was diving the Monrovia in the Alpena sanctuary. It was originally produced before zebra mussels covered everything, and showed clear detail. This was supplemented by two other tongue-in-cheek shows on wreck raping. Club member getting the 'coming from furthest distance' award was Mark Russell, who brought his family from Chesaning.

Bill even offered refreshments; Mark and Ian sample a few

Bill has put together some great presentations; both instructional and entertaining. He offered a fine show to an appreciative audience. Thank you, Bill!

-Lights please?
